

Journal Entry –June 15, 2009

Georgia and the Carolinas

Here we are sitting at Myrtle Beach, SC after a beautiful day at the beach. What an exciting and fun place! Kind of like the Long Beach Pike, POP and Atlantic City all wrapped up in one beach community. There are many golf courses, miniature golf courses, water parks and warm sandy beaches all wrapped up in one. There are six piers here and nighttime free concerts in the park and more waffle shops and fast food spots than one could ever imagine.

This past week we spent some quality time in Savannah, Georgia and Charleston, NC also. Nice beaches, waterfront cruises and tours into the beautiful homes of Savannah and the plantations of Charleston. Tomorrow we head up the coast to a place where we take the motor home and truck on an ferry across the sound to the Outer Banks of NC, landing on Ocracoke, the island of Blackbeard the Pirate and his famous hunting waters. We will take another water ferry to the island where Cape Hatteras and Kitty Hawk are located. We will stay at a nice campground (Frisco Woods) there for a week and then begin our return trip home. We will have to survive without wifi there since it's island time out there on the sand dunes and ocean referred to as the "outer banks". We were there last year, it was great, that's why we're going back but taking the ferry for fun this time.

We'll hope there are no hurricanes next week. If there is one, we'll be heading towards Nashville early ...Janice